

As a proud military wife of 20 years, Tricia Ross was named the 2012 Armed Forces Insurance Navy Spouse of the Year for her advocacy efforts supporting military children.

Tricia is passionate about connecting families to resources that alleviate hardships commonly associated with frequent moves throughout a military career.

She currently works at The Rosie Network and volunteers for Partners in PROMISE. Tricia has over ten years of experience working with national nonprofits in the volunteer and program management sector. She has held leadership roles with various organizations, including the PTA, school advisory committees, and other community organizations.

Tricia has been a featured writer for Military Families Magazine, GI Jobs, and Military Spouse Magazine and is currently the Editor for Military Entrepreneur Magazine.

She earned a Bachelor of Science in Behavioral Science from Wilmington University and a Master of Science in Human Services from Capella University.

Tricia, her husband, and four children currently live in the Camp Lejeune area.
